About the album: In her Director's Statement about Globes, Nina de Vroome says: "The title refers to a notion of 'worlds', of which the earth comprises many. The documentary considers our globalised economy, but also the landscapes around the beehive. The micro-level is thus always connected to the macro-level, the local to the global. In Globes, bonds are forged between culture and nature and the ways in which the concept of 'ecology' can be given meaning are explored. Through these encounters, the film both wanders and always returns to its core, much like the bees which fly around on the hunt for flowers return to their hives laden with nectar." Globes premiered internationally at the 2021 Ji.hlava International Documentary Film Festival (IDFF) in Prague, Czech Republic and has screened throughout Europe. The soundtrack includes not only Jordan Dykstra's original music (including Gwenaël Mario Grisi's piece "The Swarm" – performed by the Budapest Art Orchestra) but also four excerpts from Kevin Volans' masterpiece "White Man Sleeps," one excerpt of "Borromean Rings" by Reidemeister Move, and Morthen Kiang's "Atlantis."

Jordan Dykstra (b. 1985, Sioux City, Iowa) is a Brooklyn-based violist and composer exploring the performer-composer-listener relationship through the incorporation of conceptual, graphic, and text-based elements. He holds a B.F.A. from the California Institute of the Arts where he studied with Michael Pisaro and an M.A. from Wesleyan University where he was mentored by Alvin Lucier. His film music has been heard at numerous film festivals and his chamber music has been programmed in venues around the world. In addition, as a performer Jordan has been heard with bands such as Dirty Projectors, Atlas Sound, A Winged Victory for the Sullen, Valet, and Lucky Dragons. Recordings of his music (solo and collaborative) have been issued by New World, Important, Domino, Milan, Marriage, and Dykstra's own cottage industry label Editions Verde.
